Selectmen look at improvements

By ERNIE JONES

The Bethel Board of Selectmen began the process of assembling, researching and prioritizing a list of capital improvements for the town to consider at a preliminary workshop session last week.

Board Chairman Arlan Jodrey drew up a rough list of some items he felt the town might want to consider a ditching project. He said there are areas, such as along Route 35, where runoff in the spring just pours onto the road and causes damage.

He felt, and the rest of the board agreed, that by digging some sort of drainage ditch along these troubled sections of road, a great deal of maintenance would be saved.

The board moved to do further research in such areas as how much it cost other towns to undertake such a project. The board will also seek figures as to how much it would cost to lease, possibly with an operator included, a John Deere excavator to do the work.

Selectmen briefly discussed the possibility of rebuilding Mill Hill. The board will look into costs and just what can be done. Mr. Jodrey suggested the Department of Transportation be contacted to see what, if any, financial help they might be able to offer. The DOT might also help in surveying the area.

As with Mill Hill, selectmen are considering improvements on Broad Street. Some of the items they will consider include moving two hydrants and sidewalk repairs.

Town Manager Rodney Lynch gave a very rough estimate of $150,000 to $200,000 for the future construction of an adequate sand/salt shed. The construction of the shed is required by the state and it will have to be built by 1992.

Mr. Lynch said he had visited a number of similar sheds in other towns. He and the rest of the board felt that a great deal of planning and research should be put into the project.

Selectmen hope to start putting away some funds for the project in the fiscal year 1992 budget. By appropriating funds ahead of time, the board hopes to reduce the impact of trying to pay for the required shed by spreading out the funding over four years.

Chairman Jodrey suggested that the costs of the shed might be reduced even further if the town can get the Maine National Guard to help pour the cement. The National Guard has contributed to many Maine municipalities by donating labor in summer. Mr. Jodrey emphasized the chances of getting the Guard to help is dependent on getting a proposal to them soon so as to get on their schedule of projects.

A few items out of a long list of capital improvements selectmen hope to take up in the near future will include improvements at the town office, plans for the town garage and the possible purchase of a fire truck.

In other business, the board requested additional bids be sought for repairs and body work to one of the town ambulances.

Funding for recycling will be on the agendas of area town meetings

By MICHAEL DANIELS

At their annual town meetings this year, area voters will be asked to buy in to the regional recycling initiative of the Oxford County Regional Solid Waste Commission.

OCRSWC, a non-profit corporation representing 22 Oxford County towns, is applying for $503,836 in funding from the $5 million solid-waste bond issue approved by Maine voters last November.

The money would be used to set up the physical infrastructure—land, buildings, trucks, balers, etc.—needed to support a regional recycling program.

At their upcoming town meetings, voters in OCRSWC towns will be asked to provide an additional $167,946 in matching funds, to help pay for initial capital costs and 1990 operating expenses.

Initially, each town's OCRSWC contribution will be based on its population. Later, when more accurate waste production statistics are available, contributions will be based on how much waste a town actually generates.

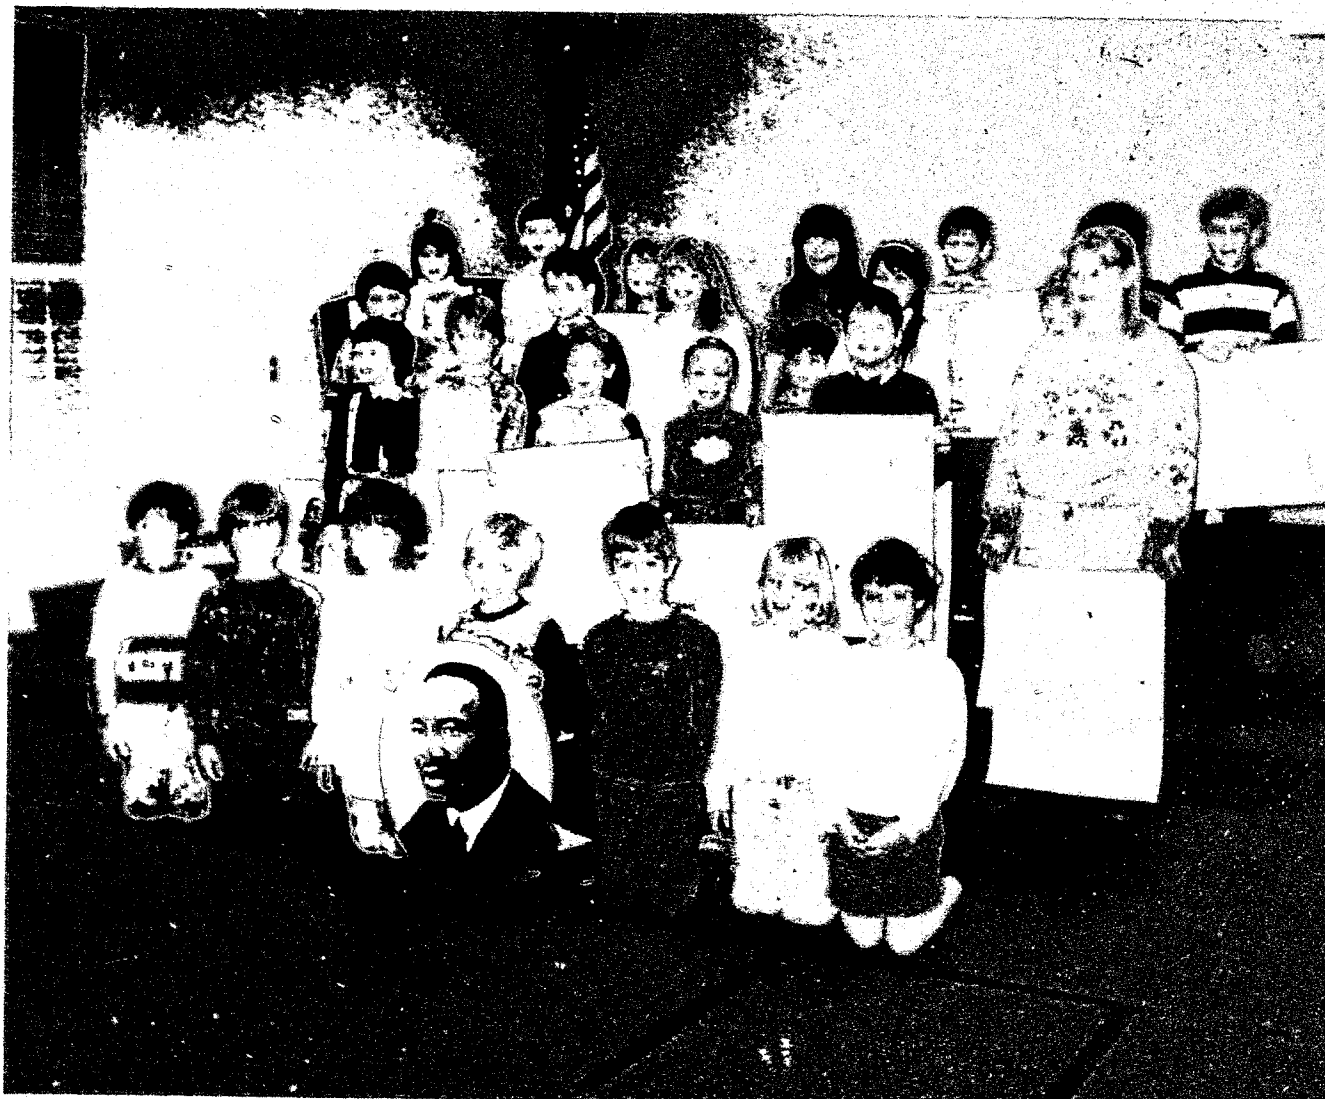

The allocations sought in local towns are as follows: Andover—$5,932, Bethel—$15,766, Gilead—$1,547, Greenwood—$4,597, Hanover—$1,805, Newry—$1,559, West Paris—$9,286, Woodstock—$7,738.

In addition, each town will be asked to vote formally to join OCRSWC, and to elect a representative to the corporation's board of directors.

It is not yet certain that OCRSWC will be awarded the $503,836 grant, since competition for the bond-issue funds is expected to be intense.

But OCRSWC should have an advantage, President Mike Cullinan, of Norway, said, because it is a regional body representing a large number of towns and unorganized territories.

"I HAVE A DREAM"—3rd graders at the Woodstock School put on a special presentation last week for Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday. Students in Jackie Morris's class recited a choral poem about Rev. King using the letters of his name, with each letter accompanied by a poster. The pupils in Ellen Greeke's class recited his "I have a dream" speech and sang "We Shall Overcome." The pupils are, left to right: front row, Jeremy Curley, Sam Sayen, Sara Paul, Danny Grover, Jeff Chandler, Danielle Appleby and Caria Harlow; middle row, Jason Rosenberg, Brandy Poland, Scott Palmer, Emily Phillips, Anthony Rand, Sara Martin, Heather Inman, Stacy Littlehale, Jessica Hart, Frank Knapp, Jessica Timm, Jeff Johnston, and Heidi Kanes; back row, Beth Putnam, Neil Thurlow, Jenny Evans, Eva Taylor, Jonathan Early, Cylas Cash and Lee Gray.

Woodstock parents argue that their 6th-graders are fine where they are

By MICHAEL DANIELS

At an amiable, low-keyed meeting last week, school district officials and approximately 20 Woodstock parents discussed the pros and cons of moving the town's 6th-graders from the Woodstock School to Telstar Middle School.

The meeting was the first of three scheduled by the school board's Education Committee to sound out district parents on the issue. A second meeting was held in Andover yesterday (Tuesday) evening and a third is scheduled for Jan. 23 at Crescent Park School.

At present, Bethel and Locke Mills pupils enter the middle school in the 6th Grade, but Andover and Woodstock pupils remain in their local elementary schools through their 6th Grade, then move on to the middle school as 7th graders.

There are no immediate plans to change this arrangement, according to school officials, but space pressures—especially at WES—may eventually make some rearrangement inevitable.

In addition, middle school teachers and administrators have repeatedly argued that all 6th-graders would benefit from the greater variety of programs and facilities at the Telstar facility.

But, faced with considerable local resistance to moving the Woodstock or Andover 6th-graders, neither the school board nor the district administration is eager to force the issue.

The current round of public meetings is not a prelude to such a move, officials insist. Education Committee Chairman John Foster earlier termed the meetings an attempt "to get the situation aired and to eliminate rumors."

But since the eventuality of such a move cannot be entirely ruled out, the meetings also provide the committee with an opportunity to size up parents' feelings—and to let parents know these feelings are not being ignored in any decision-making process.

"For the district to make any meaningful long-term plans, we need to have public input," Mr. Foster told the Woodstock parents at last week's meeting.

Resistance to moving the local 6th-graders is based largely on their age. "I think they're a little too green to be put in there with kids who are 17, even 18," Monica Mann said. "With one more year they'll be a little more seasoned."

Arla Patch, the district's elementary art specialist, said she has taught 6th-graders in both situations, and she thinks they're better off staying in their local schools. "I'd have to say I'd rather my child have the opportunity to go to elementary school through the 6th Grade," she told the parents.

Real estate market posts third year of declining sales

For the third year in a row, real estate transfers in the Bethel area declined again in 1989, according to statistics from the Oxford County Register of Deeds.

Newry, home of Sunday River Ski Resort, was one of the hardest-hit of the local towns, registering just 148 sales last year. This was just half the total number of sales recorded in 1988, during the peak of the local real estate boom.

The slowdown of sales in Newry was particularly sharp because that town's real estate market is composed largely of condominiums. And as one broker said in regards to the condominium market: "Just be glad you don't have one you have to get rid of."

Other towns also saw declines in local real estate transfers, though not as dramatic as in Newry. Bethel's transfers declined to 210, down from 272 in 1988. Woodstock's property transfers declined to 115, down from 142 in 1988.

Only Oxford and West Paris saw the number of property transfers increase over the year before. The former, in fact, posted a new record of 255 sales over the course of the year.

Local real estate agents blamed the slowdown on the virtually collapsed housing market in Massachusetts. "The Massachusetts market is down, so we're down," said Bob Bizier, of Biz Realty, in South Paris.

Ginger Kelly, of Joly Real Estate, in Bethel, agreed, pointing out that local people are still buying and selling. The difference in the market is that, "The Massachusetts buyer is not there."

Robin Zinchuk, executive director of the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce, said she has had numerous inquiries from restaurateurs in Massachusetts desirous of buying a restaurant in the Bethel area. However, she said, none of them can make the move because they can't sell their properties in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Kelly said the only properties selling are the lower-priced properties, such as winterized camps. She pointed out that one of the factors slowing down real estate sales is the fact that sellers had been placing unrealistically high prices on their properties. She said this trend has now stopped and prices are coming down.

Mrs. Kelly said the only properties selling are the lower-priced properties, such as winterized camps. She pointed out that one of the factors slowing down real estate sales is the fact that sellers had been placing unrealistically high prices on their properties. She said this trend has now stopped and prices are coming down.

She gave the following examples in the area: a property with an original price tag of $160,000 is now listed at $110,000; a property with an original price of $129,000 is now offered at $110,000; and another with an original price of $149,000 is now listed at $115,000.

Mr. Bizier also noted a reduction of prices in the Oxford Hills. He said, "If property is priced right, it's selling."

In the Bethel area, Mrs. Kelly recalled that last winter building lots had been selling well; this winter even that market has dried up. "Demand for land seems to be gone," she said.

The only bright spot in the market, according to Mrs. Kelly, has been the continued strength of lakefront property sales. "Last summer, the lakefront held its value," she said. "We'd show it to a couple of people and it would be gone."

The slowdown in sales means that properties sit on the market for a longer time. Mrs. Kelly noted that two years ago, the average time a piece of property would be on the market was nine months. Now, she said, a property will stay on the market an average of a year-and-a-half.

Both she and Mr. Bizier said the slow sales seem to have little to do with interest rates. "I don't see the business holding back because of interest rates," Mr. Bizier said. Mrs. Kelly said, "I don't think interest rates are holding it back. People are just very cautious."

Mr. Bizier said, "I think people are cautious because of the economy. They don't know what's going to happen."

On the bright side, Mrs. Kelly pointed out that people from away are still flocking to the Bethel area. "It's not a lack of people coming to Bethel that's causing the slump," she said. She pointed out that the rental market is booming. "Many more tenants than spaces," she said.

Thus, she analyzed, at some point the strong market of a few years ago should return. "It's a Pollyanna... I'll be back."

Mr. Bizier was cautiously optimistic. "I look for it to be OK, but it's not going to grow by leaps and bounds." He added, "There's been a lot of activity since the first of the year." But, he said, people have been looking only—not buying, yet.

Andover town office to handle vehicle papers

By BARBARA ADAMS

It was announced at the Andover selectmen's meeting last Tuesday evening that Town Clerk Kathy Williamson can now do motor vehicle permits, registrations and boosters for trucks over 6,000 pounds.

Four cars damaged by the deteriorating East B Hill Road are to be cleaned at the town garage on Saturday at the expense of Blue Rock Industries. The town received the promised performance bond proposal from Blue Rock, but decided to table action on the proposal until the next meeting when selectman/attorney William Maselli can be present.

The board also tabled any decision on Maine Municipal Association health benefits for town employees.

In information received from the Maine Municipal Association 1989 salary survey of towns with population under 2,500, out of 40 respondents, taking into consideration only benefits for single employees (many offer family coverage as well), one town paid 44 percent of the premium, one 50 percent, one 70 percent, one 80 percent, one 87 percent, and 35 paid 100 percent.

Investigation of installation of a public phone at the Town Hall showed a regular coin operated phone in use 24 hours a day costs $28.45 a month and installation is $38. Control would have to have access to the Town Hall to pick up the coins. There is a two-month wait for installation due to lack of coin operated phones. On a non-coin phone usable only for dialing local calls, the charge is $21.55 a month, $38 installation.

The selectmen will discuss the phone issue further due to the limited income received from rental of the premises.

As of April 1, the homestead property tax exemption goes into effect under the legislative tax reform program passed last summer. All residents who are owners of residential property (including mobile homes) who use the property as a primary residence are eligible. Owners must apply by April 1 to be allowed 5 percent off the valuation of the property on the first $45,000. An item on the town warrant would make this a one-time application. The filing application will be included in the town report.

Opinions

And let the word go forth

The pie is getting smaller and when lawmakers return to Augusta for a four-month session the battles will probably center around who can get the last piece.

Gov. John McKernan told the public last month that the revenue coming into the state was falling short of his projections. As a result he ordered his department heads to plan for cuts and possibly layoffs.

Faced with less money to work with, and it being an election year, lawmakers will have to make some tough "guns or butter" decisions about what programs should get priority.

Add to this political recipe bills on the floor calling for additional appropriations for new programs. As a result, voters will, in all likelihood, hear lots of moans, groans and challenges in the Senate and House chambers. It remains to be seen just where the ax will fall or what social program bills will be chopped.

Taxpayers can rest assured about one thing however—there will probably be no new taxes. New taxes and getting re-elected don't mix well. In the process, with less greenbacks to go around, some services will be cut. And it is our elected representatives who will be making many of those cutting decisions.

Historically, representatives are a little more sensitive in election years to what they perceive are the wishes of their constituents.

For anyone who could be directly affected by cuts in services, there is no better time than now to stand up and be counted.

Get out the typewriters and get on the phone. Tell those representatives how you feel. The program you save may be your own.

from Greenwood, noted also that the time and effort local towns have already put into OCSWC will also be a big factor when the Maine Waste Management Agency (which administers the bond issue funds) evaluates funding applications.

If the OCSWC application is not funded in full, Mrs. Bartlett said, the towns would still press ahead with the regional effort, since it is less costly than independent efforts and more likely to meet state-mandated waste-reduction goals—which call for a 25 percent waste reduction by 1991 and a 50 percent reduction by 1994.

OCSWC currently represents the towns of Andover, Bethel, Canton, Dixfield, Fryburg, Gilead, Greenwood, Hanover, Hartford, Mexico, Newry, Norway, Otisfield, Paris, Peru, Roxbury, Rumford, Watford, West Paris and Woodstock, as well as Lincoln and Magalloway plantations, Oxford County government and other unorganized territories.

'stuff' hit them full tilt. ... that incredible judgment about how they look, what they say."

"They do adjust," she agreed, "but at what cost?"

Other parents described how well—with some exceptions—their older children had made the transition where they went off to the middle school as 7th-graders. The parents credited the staffs at both WES and the middle school for making the transition process a very positive experience for most of the pupils—but no one wanted to move it up a year.

In regard to the experience—and exposure—the children will have at the middle school and high school, Denise Putnam, a parent and school director, said: "They'll have five years of that experience. Why would I want to expose my son or daughter to that a year earlier? The day will come when they go there—to play with the computer, to learn about pregnant girls in high school."

Leaves, as they are, she argued, "We're sending prepared, happy campers. I like it that way."

Some parents did acknowledge that they might be having more of a problem facing the transition than would their children, many of whom appear eager to take the big step.

Others spoke of a psychological barrier they feel exists between Woodstock and Bethel. "It's the town," Peggy Tripp said. "If we had consolidated with West Paris, everything would have been fine."

Fire chief Virgil Conkright told the board that he had located a dealer in used firefighting equipment and hopes to get a good price. He also said that he has written to Sunday River Ski Resort concerning plans of building a new hotel. The chief presented his ideas on design in relation to fire safety.

Newry to address dumpster situation

Newry selectmen have received budget requests from various committees in town and the board voted Tuesday to begin serious discussions on the budget at its Jan. 23 meeting.

Selectmen also discussed the dumpster outside the municipal building at Tuesday's meeting. The dumpster is overflowing and selectmen will consider leasing a bigger one.

Letters to the editor

To the Editor:

Your editorial and article about Casco Northern Bank in the Bethel Citizen of Dec. 27, 1989, were both misleading and damaging. To begin with, Casco Northern management considers that its overriding obligation is to ensure the safety and soundness of the institution.

Our decision not to renew several lines of credit had nothing to do with Bank of Boston. It was based on the reality that a softening Maine economy, which we started to recognize in the fall of 1988, changed the prospects and therefore, the creditworthiness of a small percentage of our business customers. While we did not enjoy having to cancel those lines, I'm sure our many customers in Oxford County who have deposits with us appreciate the fact that we are careful with their money; the money we lend belongs to our depositors and they have every right to expect us to guard it carefully.

What really hurts is your implication that we are not good neighbors and that we are from "out of state." Casco Northern is a Maine bank, founded in Maine and chartered to do business in Maine. It has its own board of directors, comprised mostly of Maine business people who are concerned about the future of Maine businesses and who are responsible to the Comptroller of the Currency for the safety and soundness of the bank.

Casco Northern Bank has done business in Oxford County since the bank was founded in 1933 and has had an office in Bethel since 1945 when it acquired the Bethel National Bank. Roger Conant, assistant vice president and manager of our Bethel office for the past 24 years, has been and continues to be, an active member of the community, volunteering many hours of his time to local organizations.

Casco Northern Bank also makes many financial donations to community organizations such as Bethel Rotary and Lions Clubs, Gould Academy and Telstar Regional High School. As far as commercial loan decisions are concerned, they are made right here in Maine by our loan officers who have lending authority for loans of up to $1 million, by our own Maine Loan Committee for loans of up to $3 million and by our Maine Board of Directors for loans of over $3 million.

To write such a damaging and factually inaccurate article about a bank that has served Bethel and Oxford County so well for so many years simply because the bank, in good faith, could not justify giving credit to a few businesses is journalism of the worst kind. I think you owe Casco Northern Bank an apology.

TO THE EDITOR:

I am a 6th-grade student at Telstar. Some of my classmates and I would like it and appreciate it if Bethel would cut back on the use of styrofoam.

Styrofoam is a big concern when it comes to the ozone layer. When styrofoam is made and burned, the chemicals go into the air and create holes in the ozone layer. There are alternatives. So we are asking the residents of Bethel that don't care or don't think that a town can help, please support us.

Please cut back on the use of styrofoam. Thank you.

To the Editor:

For the past few years there has been growing concern by your school bus drivers and the bus drivers statewide of escalating disciplinary problems on the buses. I am sure that many of you parents have heard a few stories about what goes on to and from school, especially the latter. To those of you who do not have children riding the buses I would like to share with you some of what is and can be common occurrences each day.

• Straightened paper clips propelled by a rubber band.

• Thrown pennies;

• The comparatively harmless practice of sailing paper planes (of course, someone has to jump up and catch it);

• Open fighting;

• Grabbing items of clothing and throwing them around;

• Spitting on each other and the bus;

• Shooting spit balls;

• Vulgar language.

Certainly there is the always present watch by the driver for smoking on the bus, playing with lighters or carrying knives.

We live in the land of "log trucks and tourists." It is an experience to drive a full bus, which can be up to 72 passengers, or so, and make stops on Routes 2 or 25. Now add even three or four of these passengers causing disruptions; I am being very conservative. What you have is a driver whose eyes are not on the road as much as they should be. Many a driver has reached his/her destination with a kink in the neck from watching the rear-view mirror, trying to keep track of what is going on behind them. The potential for an accident is magnified by these circumstances.

SAD #44 does have a student disciplinary policy in place; however, the process to remove disruptive passengers for a meaningful length of time is in need of revision. There needs to be a firmer stand taken regarding standards of behavior on buses. I am confident that no parent wants his child riding a bus where known safety problems exist.

Do remember that as much as your school administrators and supervisor of transportation want to help, the policies which they must implement are made by your school board with recommendations from the administration.

The Transportation Department of SAD #44 has well-maintained buses. An excellent program for upgrading the skills and knowledge of your drivers is now operational. Now it is time to work more diligently on the safety factor. Please call your school board representative and ask him or her to investigate and revise the present disciplinary policy for SAD #44.

Your representatives are listed below:

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Board of Directors of the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce, I would like to respond to a recent letter to the editor concerning the cancellation of the Bethel Area Sled Dog Races.

Unfortunately, Alicia Ayiward Marcinczyk, the author of the letter which appeared in the Citizen last week, was given misinformation as to the reasons why the races have been cancelled this year.

First, a little history on the races. In late 1988 I contacted the Downeast Sled Dog Association about scheduling a race in the Bethel area. After a considerable amount of work, telephoning, soliciting sponsors and arranging for the race to be held on the Bethel Inn golf course, the races became a reality in 1989. The chamber successfully raised over $1,000 worth of sponsors for the dog sleds and invited Channel 8 and Channel 10, who filmed and released footage of the event.

Bad weather caused a last-minute cancellation of the races in 1987 after the Chamber again made all the arrangements and collected over $1,000 in sponsorships.

Better luck prevailed in 1988 when the races were again held at the Bethel Inn and in 1989 we moved the races to North Pond in Greenwood.

A strong committee commitment, led by Tim Hutchins and Dillon Gillies, with cooperation from the local snowmobile clubs, made the 1989 races a resounding success. Nearly $2,000 in cash and prizes were gathered and given to local sled dog racers by the chamber.

The Sled Dog Association was apparently very pleased with the event and they expressed the desire to hold the New England Six-Dog Championship on North Pond in 1990. The chamber was quite pleased and really looked forward to the event.

We started looking for more sponsors early, with not a lot of luck. In a telephone exchange with the Sled Dog Association, the Chamber committed to "at least the $1,000 we've been able to solicit in the past."

After a Dog Sled Association meeting, the Chamber received a letter stating that they had decided to cancel the Bethel area race for two reasons: little or no prospect of a bigger purse and "difficulty in finding accommodations for the participants."

We were extremely disappointed at this decision. It is our hope that perhaps circumstances will again bring the mushers back into our area someday.

VET CENTER STAYS

In what he described as a "major victory for Maine's veterans," Sen. Cohen announced that the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) has, at his request, cancelled plans to transfer an important office from the Togus VA hospital to Manchester, N.H.

Cohen said that the office of VA Secretary Edward Derwinski assured him that the 24-person adjudication office would remain at Togus. The adjudication office is responsible for processing compensation and pension claims filed by veterans.

"Sen. Mitchell and I called Secretary Derwinski several times and told him in no uncertain terms that we would work to stop the proposed transfer because of the effect it would have on Maine veterans. I am pleased he heard our message and that, split by the many veterans who wrote, called, and visited my office to protest this proposal," Sen. Cohen said.

We had lots of business and set lots of dates at our teachers' meeting this week. Rankes close on Jan. 19. Student reports will be going home on Jan. 31. Parents, be looking for a conference slip to be coming home the week of Jan. 22. Please indicate in general when you can come in and return the slips promptly so we can schedule families consecutively. We will send home your official time with the student reports. The scheduled conference date is Feb. 5.

Kindergarten classes are scheduled to switch on Jan. 22. Those that have been attending mornings will now come in the afternoon, and vice-versa.

On Jan. 29 Grades 4, 5, and 6 will be participating in a Geography Bee. We have not done this before, but it sounds like fun. More details on this later. There have been lots of activities going on this week. All classes are learning about Martin Luther King, and why we celebrate him on Jan. 15. Mrs. Veronique showed a film called "The Boy King." It was about Mr. King as a child and depicted some of the events in his life that influenced his lifetime of leadership.

The 8th-graders planned and enjoyed a Mexican lunch for Thursday. They have finished up their studies of Mexico and were celebrating Mexican style.

My 8th-graders have written their own "Have A Dream" composition. We were lucky again and another one of our letter writing activities received a reply. LCPD Clifford Teshep received our packet of Christmas cards and letters that we wrote to a service person who did not get home for Christmas. He has been stationed all over, but calls Idaho home. He said he would write again if we wished, so we are busy preparing another packet of letters for him. In conjunction with our social studies unit on the American Revolution, I am reading an historical novel, "My Brother Sam Is Dead." This is excellent realistic fiction.

The 4th-graders are finishing up their science unit on friction and the big test is scheduled for Thursday. In English, or language arts, they are learning how to set up and write a friendly letter—good preparation for all the letters we write in 5th Grade.

Third-graders are improving their journal writing skills. They write every morning. A topic is put on the board or they choose one of their own. They especially enjoy sharing their writings with their classmates. Mr. Burke is reading the treasured "Little House in The Big Woods," by Laura Ingalls Wilder.

The 2nd-graders are welcoming Mary Elizabeth Fox who has just moved here from Lovell. Mary arrives in time to begin a math unit on measurement. The class has also received its first reply from their pen pals in California and they are learning about letter writing while preparing their responses. Rebecca Chase is the special student of the week. Enjoy the week Becky.

The 1st-graders are having fun making new booklets called "When I Walk In The Forest." They are playing a new reading game, "Word Builders," which uses vowel sounds and then builds a word around the vowel sound. They are getting some exercise in math and learning to tell time by using their bodies to depict the hours.

The kindergartners are learning about the letter M by making them in their sand trays. They are making number books 0-9 for a math task. Our weekly calendar says they are also making snowmen. This is that time of year!

Tri-Town Rescue

Bill Severance, from Stunham, will teach an EMT refresher each Wednesday night at the Tri-Town Rescue barn through the month of January. Several Tri-Town members are taking the course which will enable them to renew their licenses for three years. Training will be scheduled for Jan. 23 due to the EMT course.

Activity is picking up in Bryant Pond as the service prepares to move into the new municipal complex. Wall and floor have a new coat of paint and the access will soon be on Church Street.

Tri-Town is planning its annual meeting for Feb. 21. Awards, election of officers and pot luck supper are scheduled to take place at the meeting.

Another week of moderate temperatures for January or is it just a long January thaw? It has created quite a few snow showers and the 10th was a mixture of weather making not the best traveling. Had an appointment at the doctor's and while I was gassing up I began to rain. I had a few errands in town and when those were done decided to go home and call the doctor. Should have known if I had an appointment, as one of the neighbors used to jokingly call me if I was going anywhere that week. Then she would say that she would make plans for another day because if she made it the day I was going she could count on bad weather.

Jan. 6th Frank, Frankie and I went to Lewiston to Wilfred and Kim's for supper. The 7th we invited Ira, Kim, and James William over for dinner; then my brother John Allen and friend Beth Combs, of Oxford stopped in later in the evening. Ernest and Alberta Angevine came up with some goodies she had baked. The 12th had to go to Hanover to pick up the hams and bacon we had smoked so asked my friend Jean Grover to meet me in town so we could visit while we went. We also went to Ames in Rumford and picked up a few of their specials in the flyer. We stopped for lunch. The day was beautiful and suspect the children really enjoyed it as they had no school.

In the afternoon Karen and Sarah Page came for a visit. Even though the sun was shining, every once in a while we would have snow squalls.

Barbara Trimback Millett called one day to tell me her uncle, Guy Parker of Bethel House is at Stephens Memorial Hospital with a broken back so will be in for a long while; also her sister, Helen Trimback Smith is at Augusta Mental Health Institute in Augusta and that both did appreciate having cards. I have since heard that Guy's wife, Vera has had to go to a Ledgewood Nursing Home. Bob Howe has put a fishing house out at Songo. Bob, with sons, Seth and Jon, have been enjoying it. Seth Howe has started skiing lessons at Mount Abram in their junior program on Saturday mornings.

Barbara MacDougall and Rachel Keady went to Norway shopping one day. The Seames children have been skiing at Mount Abram.

Stan and Althea Brown came home the 4th from Rock Springs, WY. Don and Arlene Brown, who had been spending New Year's with her brother, Robert Greenleaf, at Providence, R.I., came home Thursday to meet Stan and Althea at Portland airport.

Shannon Fuller had Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Homer Smith and Andy.

Matthew Bean raced in a ski race on the 6th at Telstar. Becky Shaw and sister Martha Bangs, of Dresden are getting together every Wednesday at Woman's Day at Mt. Abram. They also are given a skiing lesson that day. Jon and Jen Shaw have joined the Monday afternoon cross country ski group held at Crescent Park School. This is open Monday through Thursday for 2nd to 5th graders. Equipment is provided for those who do not have it.

Barbara Angevine Willard and daughter, Mary Frances Baudo, daughter and grand-daughter of Ernest and Alberta Angevine flew to Puerto Rico as Mary Frances is enrolled in the university there as an exchange student at San Juan. Barbara will be staying two weeks before flying home.

Chuck and Kathleen, Mason's three children and Debbie Seames spent Sunday afternoon on the common skating. I have wept in the night for the shortness of sight that to somebody's need made me blind; but I never have yet felt a twinge of regret for being a little too kind.

BROWNS MARK ANNIVERSARY

In a simple candlelight service at the home of her parents, Dec. 26, 1944, Arlene Maerice Greenleaf, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Sherman S. Greenleaf, of Bethel, came the bride of Cpl. Donald S. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brown, of Bethel. The Rev. William Penner of the Methodist Church performed the double ring ceremony, and they were attended by Mrs. Barbara Lyon Kuzik and Stanley Brown.

On Dec. 26, 1989, Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Brown were honored at a surprise party in celebration of their 45th wedding anniversary. The evening was hosted by their children and granddaughters, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Nickerson and Kate, and Mr. and Mrs. Kurt G. Brown, and was held at the Nickerson home on Paradise Road, Bethel.

The house was decorated with evergreen garlands, bouquets of white poms, mini carnations and pink snapdragons, white candles, and white paper bells, much the same as the bride's home was decorated for the wedding in 1944.

The anniversary cake was a copy of their wedding cake, and was topped with the original soldier and bride statuette. Also displayed on the cake table were wedding pictures and mementos, including the flower trimmed prayer book which was carried by the bride.

Several tapes were played, and letters read, from friends and relatives who had attended the wedding, but were unable to be at the anniversary celebration. Their memories of the wedding and their good wishes added a special touch to the evening. During the evening the honorees received phone calls from relatives and friends in Maine, Wyoming, Florida and Vermont.

A toast to the guests of honor was made by Robert L. Greenleaf, brother of the bride. They then cut their cake, which was served by Kate Nickerson.

The guest book was circulated by Kate Nickerson and was signed by 51 relatives and friends from Bethel, Raymond, Locke Mills, Bryant Pond, Waterford, Lovell, Harrison, Starks, Biddeford and Limestone, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Maryland.

The Browns are lifelong residents of Bethel. Mr. Brown was discharged from the Army in June 1945, after serving 51 months. He studied at the New York Institute of Photography and upon his return to Bethel they opened Don Brown Studio. He was also involved in the family business, the Bethel Citizen, from which he retired in 1984. Mrs. Brown

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

When I last wrote, it was about a glittering crystal world encased in ice. Now the snow lipothes softly past my window. The house is quiet, not a breath of wind. Branches arch bare and bone-thin over sheer whiteness. So dead they look, dark and stark against the wintry gloom; it is hard to think they'll ever live again.

The voice of the woods, some days, is a sharp, dry rustle of the withered oak. The snow would be more dreary and still if it weren't for these. It sounds like the roar of the sea, billows of air breaking on the forest like water on sand and rocks.

I saw this morning one of the busiest birds of all, and far more independent than most. The brown creeper gets little attention because it is shy, busy and needs no companionship. It is about the size of a chickadee, but looks smaller. It lacks the pertness of the chickadee and the absurdity of the nuthatch. On a tree it is as sure footed as a ceiling fly. It starts at the base of the tree, goes up and never misses a crack, where there may be insect eggs. It feeds on a run; goes up then flies down to the base of another tree to start another climb.

Now comes the long slow haul up the cold slope toward spring. The cold days and long nights are ours. But streams will flow again, the rocks will warm in the sun, the birds will sing. Spring will come. The sun is now writing tomorrow's message for us.

Whisper, for earth lies sleeping give her this time to rest. Fold the white blanket softly, gently over her breast. Hush for the earth lies dreaming sweetly of the fruits she will bring. Let her sleep on 'til her pulses leap to the bugles of spring. (Louise Hayek)

Soviet speaker makes visit to Gould Academy

Vica Butenko, president of the Association of Student Cooperatives of the U.S.S.R., visited Gould Academy last week, sharing reflections of changes in the Soviet Union with students and faculty, and discussing ideas for possible future cooperative programs.

This summer Gould will host two Russian students in its six-week Summer School program, including Mrs. Butenko's son Stefan, who visited the school last week along with Mrs. Butenko's husband Igor.

The Moscow family was introduced to the Gould community by Peter Haggerty, who lectured on Soviet-American relations last month at Gould. Although details have not been finalized, Gould students could experience a similar term of study in the Soviet Union the following year.

The Butenkos were said to have intrigued their American hosts with the stories of the most recent state of conditions in the Soviet Union. Mrs. Butenko, whose interest in bringing Western business practices back to the Soviet Union is high on her list of priorities, spoke of the many shortages besetting her people, and the lack of any kind of incentive for workers to produce quality goods and services.

She spoke of the need for private ownership of property, saying, "It is one in a hundred people who will care for someone else's property as well as they will their own. It is human nature to take pride and stewardship in that which one can pass on to one's children."

Gould Academy appears to be extremely interested in programs involving Eastern Europe, especially in this year of sweeping changes. Vica Butenko is the fourth Gould speaker this year on Soviet issues. Others have included John Morton, the Vermont lecturer chose to be part of the Vietnam-Afghanistan Veterans Association in the Soviet Union last September; Dartmouth College Soviet expert Professor George Demko, who will speak at Gould later this winter; as well as Peter Haggerty.

High Street

By VIVA WHITMAN

Doesn't look like too good a day today as I sit down to type and the report on the TV and radio doesn't sound too good either. Hope somehow they are wrong, as I have a couple of appointments in town today and I don't like to drive in bad going as I can't handle the car as well as I used to. I can drive but don't have the ability to cope with storms as well and get more nervous because of it. However, I expect I will manage somehow.

How nice it has been to have the warmer weather lately. Just seems like heaven to be able to go for my walks again but I am sure it won't last too long. I just can't go walking in the deep freeze weather as my lungs won't take it, but I have been the last couple of days and enjoyed it immensely.

Got some things ready to embroider a week ago and started the job of embroidering the designs after getting them stamped onto some bureau scarves I plan to make.

Peggy and Russell went to town to do some errands and in the afternoon they went for some sand for the icy yard so we wouldn't fall and break some bones. Bertha Benoit had supper with Peggy in the evening. We had seen the car when it left and didn't know just who it was but she told us that Bertha had supper with her.

Jan. 4 was my birthday and Russell presented me with a box of puffs to try. They are more expensive so I hadn't bought any to try so I am glad to get them as I use a lot of tissues. He had bought me some cloth earlier when we were shopping and had me pick out what I liked. That is nice as I saw most of my own clothes. Wouldn't have as many if I didn't. Got several telephone calls wishing me a good day and in the evening, Wynona, Courtney and Karriam came with gifts and had supper with us before hurrying home again. It was raining so I didn't expect her to come. However, she doesn't miss her mother's birthday very often. Got some jewelry and a curio cabinet from the family. Got some money which is always a good gift as it helps in whatever way one needs no matter how big or small. Also got some name tags to stick on envelopes from Laura. Had made myself a birthday cake the macrobiotic way and it was good. Peggy was going to visit Mary Smith so as Russell and I wanted some things in town, we went there first and then to visit Mary.

Friday was my day to go to North Bridgton and see Dr. Jealous. He said my ear drum wasn't working right so made an appointment for me to see Dr. Payton who comes up from Portland to see folks in Bridgton or there abouts. He is a busy fellow when there.

In the evening, Peggy and Russell went to the dance in Mechanic Falls with

Teistar foils strong Mount Abram effort

Teistar High School demonstrated why a team should never give up as the Rebel basketball team overcame an upset-minded Mount Abram last week for a 60-57 win.

Teistar fell behind early in the contest and never gained the lead until late in final period. The Mount Abram defense kept the Rebels at bay for most of the game.

Zealous defense also had its downside for the Roadrunners, as they were whittled for 16 penalties.

Corey Dugan led the Teistar attack with 16 points. Teammates Tony MacKillop and Aaron Bean also hit for double figures in the Mountain Valley Conference contest.

Charlotte Cole and Mary Stone from Locke Mills. Guess they had a good time from all I could tell.

Saturday was a day when I didn't do too much. Have been having a bad time with my shoulder and left arm so didn't do much. Too much pain, etc. Peggy went to the dance in West Paris that evening. Said they had a good crowd there.

Sunday after dinner, Peggy, Russell and I went to East Andover to visit Laura and Bernard Hutchins. Had a nice visit there and then went to West Bethel where Peggy got some fruit that had been sent to her from Mrs. Root, a lady she worked for in Massachusetts at one time. I hadn't seen Loretta and Em's home since they got it finished and were living in it so it was a pleasure for me to see how they had gotten it done. A real nice home for them.

Monday was a day for me to go for another treatment as my shoulder and arm were painning me so much. Saw Dr. Field in North Bridgton and then went to Bridgton to see Dr. Payton. Took up the whole afternoon with these two calls.

Still having trouble with the shoulder and arm and guess it is going to continue by the feeling. It just doesn't want to straighten out for me and stop painning. Mary Lovejoy's mother Impy Mack has been having pneumonia. There has been so much bronchitis and pneumonia this year that it is far from funny. Veino Pike called on the Lovejoys yesterday. He is feeling much better and Mary said he looks better than he did.

The Christian Congo Church finally had its Christmas program and tree this past Sunday. Weather and one thing and another had prevented them having it before then.

West Paris Grange will hold a meeting on the 18th of this month and visitors are welcome.

There will never be a better time to reserve a Fairway Townhouse Condominium or a Single-Family Homestead on the Golf Course

Plans for new Fairway Townhouses and single family home sites are in the final planning stage, and the opportunity for pre-construction prices is now.

— It's no secret that the real estate market has flattened. Our luxury condominiums are priced accordingly for now, but will increase substantially over time. A $1,000 reservation deposit will guarantee today's pre-construction price.
— Expect all ten of the new units to be under contract prior to construction, as were the original 40, with price schedules starting at $165,900.
— While planning for the homesites is in its early stages, we expect prices will begin around $20,000.
— A reservation deposit of $1,000 will insure availability and selection priority of either a home site or condo. This deposit is refundable, plus interest, at any time, for any reason.

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY
Of the original 40 Townhouses one is available now for immediate occupancy and priced to sell at $179,900 with complete furnishings. This unit is in the prime location, closest to the Inn Complex.

— A SPECIAL OFFER... Reservation deposits received prior to February 15, 1990, on a Townhouse or homestead, will entitle you to a three-year free Country Club membership from your date of occupancy. A $3,000 value if you act now.

CARD OF THANKS

No words can express the deep appreciation and sincere gratitude we have for all the wonderful people who helped in any way to ease the burden of our recent loss.

To Pam and Mike Conkright and Greg Fraser: You made a very difficult time so much easier to bear.

Foster John Clayton: Whenever we needed you, you were there. Thank you for the beautiful words we can forever hold in our hearts.

Greenleaf Funeral Home's Nick Clements: Your help and caring we couldn't have done without.

The ladies from the Bethel Church of the Nazarene: Your kindness and great help to us all will never be forgotten.

Freda Robertson: Thank you for all you did. You were so very special to Mom. Please know that you are to us also.

To all other friends and relatives, which would be impossible to name one by one: Please know you are written on our hearts. One of the greatest blessings God gives is friends, and we are so fortunate and blessed to have so many. Thank you and God bless you all.

Rotary Club notes

The Bethel Rotary Club met for its regular meeting yesterday (Tuesday) at The Bethel Inn.

Visiting Rotarians and guests were: Wende Gray, Bethel; Dave Costello and Ed Snook, Lewiston; Dick Fain, Bethel; Billy Stowell, West Bethel; Mac MacMunn, Cape Cod.

Roger Conant was the lucky winner of the 50/50 raffle. He donated the winnings to the Rotary Scholarship fund.

Rick Whitney gave Rotary information on the situation in Eastern Europe. The Board of Directors of Rotary International formally approved The Soviet Union, Poland, Hungary, China and Yugoslavia for Rotary Development. The two newest clubs in that area are Warsaw, Poland, and Budapest, Hungary.

Dan Hart and Ted Davis gave an update on Career Awareness Day.

The guest speaker was Tom Ford, physics teacher at Gould Academy. He, with the Rotary program director, George Larson, demonstrated principles of physics by lying on a board of nails as well as breaking blocks on the chest of the person lying on the nails. This demonstrates the kind of exciting learning Mr. Ford enjoys bringing into his classroom. Gould Academy is fortunate to have him on the faculty.
